ATURDAY EVENING. NOV. 16, 1247.

Had His Revenge.

The rivalry was great at the annual cricket match police versus publicana, and many friendly bets depended on When the last batsman, Police Constable Robinson, walked to the wicket the police required only two runs to win, and naturally great excitement prevailed. He batted with due care until a loose ball came, and, hitting this past mid-on, he started for an easy run. He got home comforta-bly before the wicket was thrown down, but to his disgust he was given stable, "I was a yard past the wicket!"

"Mebbee," said the umpire in a supercilious tone, "but, yer see, it ain't what you say; it's what I say, an' i say you'm out!" "But"- began the trate Robinson "D'yer remember," interrupted the umpire, meditatively scratching his "sayin' to me 'bout six months ago, 'Don't argue with the law?' you was the law that time an' I was run in. Now," he added, triumphant, "I'm the law an' you're run out!"-London Tit-Bits.

Pay of Army Officers.

A giance over the army list shows that over two-thirds of the officers are receiving less pay per day than goo mechanics receive in civil life. The officer has no home, but must be pre pared to live in the arctics or the trop ics and change from one to the other at short notice. He must have equip-ment for both, and while in one place the equipment for the other is stored and deteriorating. He is sent on long journeys to distant stations and must suffer banishment from his family or take them along. Either is a great expense—on one hand for travel and on the other for maintenance of two establishments. His changes of sta-tion are so frequent that he must put his children in costly private schools or see them grow up in ignorance. Be cause he is an officer of the United States service to use the respectability of his position to add to his incon commercially is regarded as repre hensible, and if he makes an invest ment he must intrust his interests to an agent.-Army and Navy Life.

Hot, tired and dusty, the excursion was returning from the seaside day trip, and Simkins, a little bald man with big ears, overcome with his day of happiness, dropped off to sleep. In the hatrack above another passenger had deposited a feroclous crab in a bucket, and when Simkins went to sleep the crab woke up and, finding things dull in the bucket, started exploring. By careful navigation Mr. Orab reached the edge of the rack, but the next moment down it fell, alight ing on Simkins' shoulder. Not feeling quite safe, it grabbed the voluminous ear of Simkins to steady itself, and the passengers held their breath and waited for developments. But Simkins only shook his head slightly. "Let go, Eliza," he murmured. "I tell you I have been at the office all the evening."-London Pick-Me-Up. Men, Women and Adjectives. Certain adjectives are reserved for men and others for women. A man is never called "beautifui." Along with

"pretty" and "lovely" that adjective has become the property of women and children alone. "Handsome" and the weak "good looking" are the only two adjectives of the kind common to ei-ther sex. Even "belle" has no real that "handsome" should have become the word for a strikingly good looking person, since its literal meaning is handy, dexterous. But "pretty" likewise comes from the Anglo-Saxon word

Beauty In the Angleworm. If there is any living thing that seem to have nothing to relieve its ugitness it is the angleworm that crawls slimily across the sidewalk after a heavy rain. And yet even that is beautiful. Put a bit of its upper skin under the micro scope and your ideas of the poor little worm will change mightily. It shim-mers like the softest satin and sparkles with all the colors of the rainbow, for it is covered with little fine lines crossing each other like the cuttings in

The Smooth Handle. Everything has two handles-one by which it may be borne, another by which it cannot. If your brother acts unjustly, do not lay hold on the affair by the handle of his injustice, for by that it cannot be borne, but rather by the opposite, that he is your brother that he was brought up with you, and thus you will lay hold on it as it is to be borne.-Epictetus.

A Word For Nero.
"Nero fiddled while Rome burned!"

exclaimed the student.
"Well," replied Mr. Growcher, "that's better than the custom many violinists have of practicing at a time when ev erything is nice and quiet otherwise." -Washington Star.

The Compromise.
